

ENG 230 : Survey of American Literature I

Fall - Even Year

This course surveys American literature from the pre-colonial period to the Civil War. The roots of the American experience and the major currents in American thought are discussed. Significant works of American writers, traditional and non-traditional, are studied for their literary value and in their historical and philosophical contexts.

Credits 3

Corequisite Courses

ENG 110